RTI International is a leading nonprofit research and development organization that has been working in Latin America and the Caribbean (LAC) for more than 30 years.

Working closely with government agencies and local partners, we provide expert consulting services, technical assistance, training, and applied research—with the goal of building local capacity to ensure sustainable programs.

Our LAC Regional Office in San Salvador supports project activities throughout the region and draws, as needed, on the capabilities of our worldwide staff of 3,700 experts in international development, social and laboratory sciences, and engineering.

Our work in the region spans economic growth, education, environmental management, governance, health, information and communication technology, and public-private partnerships.
