Attachment A Statement of Work

Description of Activity/Service:

Development of a self-paced learning course on writing concept notes in response to USAID NuMERAL solicitations, to provide capacity strengthening to local partners applying for subawards.

Reports to: Sorrel Namaste, NuMERAL Deputy Project Director

Background: Achieving optimal health, nutrition, and early childhood development (ECD) outcomes at scale through health systems mandates new ways of working and learning. It requires bringing together a diverse group of health sector leaders, program implementers, and researchers to collaboratively generate and use evidence to guide holistic policies and programs.

To this end, the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID)-funded Enhancing Nutrition Monitoring, Evaluation, Research, and Learning in the Health Sector (NuMERAL) Activity (subsequently “the project”) (2023–2028) supports local research, monitoring, and evaluation, and its translation to inform country-level and cross-national learning, collaboration, and action across three focus areas. These focus areas are: (1) mainstreaming nutrition in reproductive, maternal, newborn, child, and adolescent health (RMNCAH) policies and services; (2) integrating responsive caregiving and opportunities for early learning into nutrition policies and programs; and (3) improving assessment and prevention of micronutrient deficiencies and anemia. The project activities are underpinned by the following four strategic approaches: (1) supporting local partners’ leadership and strategic partnerships; (2) strengthening and building the evidence base for implementation; (3) translating evidence for learning, cross-country sharing, and utilization; and (4) optimizing monitoring, evaluation, and information systems in nutrition.

The RTI International-led NuMERAL Consortium supports country-level, context-specific, locally led generation and use of knowledge in the three focus areas by identifying and understanding critical gaps in nutrition research. This method ensures the successful translation and integration of the acquired learning using the following approaches:

- Understanding critical nutrition research gaps, including impact and performance of interventions
- Engaging local partners to conduct research, monitoring, and evaluation activities and provide capacity strengthening support based on participatory capacity assessments
- Mobilizing stakeholders in-country to collaborate with partners at all stages of research, monitoring, and evaluation activities
- Transforming evidence through Action Plans co-created with each partner in consultation with local stakeholders
- Disseminating learning through traditional and innovative methods to increase evidence uptake to strengthen health, nutrition, responsive care, and early learning policy and services

- Strengthening global and country data ecosystems to inform the quality, equity, and coverage of nutrition and ECD services.

NuMERAL activities will strengthen local capacity in monitoring, evaluation, research, research utilization, and learning and result in increased collaborative generation and use of evidence to improve nutrition and ECD.

Activity Description: The NuMERAL program seeks to produce a self-paced learning course to strengthen local partners' capacity to write successful concept papers in response to NuMERAL's broad solicitations. In this course, participants will: 1) learn about NuMERAL focus areas, strategic approaches, and learning agenda, 2) get acquainted with the upcoming NuMERAL Expression of Interest (EOI) process, and 3) gain skills in preparation for an effective EOI.

The course will include:

- recorded narrative slides providing a course overview and information on what the participant can expect to learn;
- module summaries;
- interactive elements such as scenarios, simulations, or quizzes;
- templates and checklists for proposal writing;
- a certification of completion; and
- a feedback survey.

The self-paced, pre-recorded learning course will be made publicly available in English and French and will be accessible by potential local applicants at their convenience. A preliminary outline of the topics to be included in the course is found in Annex 1.

The company or individual selected for this work will work in close collaboration with the NuMERAL technical team on development of the course. They will have a strong portfolio in educational and instructional production for online adult learning. Experience with creating content for a research-focused audience in low- and middle-income countries (LMICs) is a significant plus. Delivery of final products is needed by July 1, 2024.
