What is BeatNTDs.org?

More than one billion people around the world suffer from Neglected Tropical Diseases. Through the efforts of many committed stakeholders, hundreds of millions are no longer at risk. BeatNTDs.org is a digital hub to raise awareness about this enormous—yet overlooked and unfinished—global success story.

How can I get involved?

The global NTD community is invited to submit your own content to be featured on BeatNTDs.org. You are also encouraged to join the conversation on social media at #BeatNTDs.

What kind of content may be included?

We are happy to include any content type that is relevant to the site. Content must already be published online. BeatNTDs.org will link to the content where it is currently hosted; content will not be re-posted on the website.

Suggested content types include but are not limited to: success stories, blogs, op-eds, videos, and infographics.

Content is grouped into three categories:

- What Winning Looks Like—Success stories and other content illustrating progress in the fight against NTDs.
- Insights & Opinions—Expert analysis relating to the fight against NTDs.
- Learn More—Additional reference materials for readers to learn more about NTDs and the global efforts to control and eliminate them.

How can I submit content?

Simply send a link to the content, a relevant high-resolution photograph, and a tweet about the content to beatntds@rti.org.
